Ato and his friends had by some means been informed of our intention. willing to come to blove, and seemed highly insignant, but as none of his followers appeared willing to come to blove, and seemed ashamed that such a transaction should have been discovered by us, we were permitted by them to do as we obsee. We accordingly dug a tolerably deep graye; then we resolutely attacked the oven. Off removing the earth and leaves, the shocking speciate was presented to our view—the four quarters of a human body half-rowted. During our work, clouds of steam enveloped us, and the disgust created by our task was almost overpowering. We collected aif the parts we could recognize; the heart was placed separately, we sgust created by our task was almost overowering. We collected all the parts we could sugnise; the heart was placed separately, we supposed as a savoury morsel for the chief himf. We placed the whole in the grave, which silled up as well as we could, and then broke

'The this tame the natives from both villages had assembled; and a scene similar to this was never before witnessed in New Zealand. Six unarmed men, quite unprotected, (for there was not a situgle vessel in the harber, nor had there been for a month.) had attacked and destroyed all the preparations of the natives for what they consider a national feast; and this was done in the presence of a great body of armed chiefs, who had attacked to be care of it. And fasting that we had acted very imprudently in thus tempting these savages, and interfering in an affair that certainly was no concern of ourse but as no harm accoursed to any of our party, it plainly shows the influence "the white men" have already obtained over them: had the offence we committed been done by any hostile tribe, hundreds of lives would have been sacrificed.

"The next day our old friend King George mid us a long visit and use talked over the at lives of the natives the distance of the natives of the order of ourse the secondary of the secondary.

The next day our old friend King George mid us a long visit, and use talked over the at like for the native of the natives of the natives of the natives for what they consider a national feast; and this was done in the fouring fill kinds of repairing and job work done in brass or root, all the above work will be executed with dispatch and or as accommodating terms as can be had in the western country.

The next day our old friend King George mid us a long visit, and use talked over the dispatch and stand the first of the natives of the natives for what they consider a national feast; and the second of the natives for what they consider a national feast; and the second of the natives for what they consider a national feast; and the policy of the natives for what they consider a national feast; and the policy of the natives for what they consider a national feast; and the feast and destroyed and the policy of the natives for what they consider a national feast; and the feast and hundreds of lives would have been sacrificed.

"The next day our old friend King George paid us a long visit, and we talked over the affair calmly. He highly disapproved of our conduct. "In the first place," said he, "you did a foolish thing, which might have cost you your lives; and yet did not accomplish your purpose the feet all; as you merely succeeded in burying the fesh near the spot on which you found it.

After you went away, it was again taken up, and every bit was enfen,"—a fact I afterwards ascertained by examining the grave, and finding it cropty. King George further said, "it was an old custom, which thoir fathers practised before them; and you had no right to interfere with their coremonies. "I myself," said he, "have left off cating human flesh, out of compliment to you white men; but you have no reason to expect the sum of the property of the sum of th you white men; but you have no reason to expect the same compliance from all the other chiefs. What punishment have you in England for thieves and runaways?" We answered, "After trial, flegging or hanging." "Then," he replied, "the only difference in our laws is, you flog and hang, but we shoot and eat."

Between Lofoden and oakon the depth of the water is between thirty-six and forty fathoms when it is flood; the stream runs up the country with busierous repidity, and the roar of its impetuous ebb to the sea is secreely equalled by the loudest cataracts, the noise being heard several leagues off, and the vortex so powerful as to absorb every ship that comes within its attractions. It is then boaten to pieces against the rocks at the bottom, and when the water is smoother its fragments are thrown up again. But these intervals of tranquility happen only at the turn of the ebb and flow, and last but a quarter of an hour.

Whales frequently come too near the stream, and Whales frequently come too near the stream, and are overpowered by its violence. In the year 1645 the stream raged with such noise and impetuosity that on the island of Moskoe the very stones of the houses fell to the ground.

VALUABLE INFORMATION.—A young lady of Philadelphia, while in the country some years ago, stepped on a rusty nail, which ran through her shot and foot. The inflammation and pain her shoe and foot. The inflammation and pain were of course very great, and lock jaw was apprehended. A friend of the family, however, recommended the application of a beet taken fresh from the garden, and pounded fine, to the wound. It was done, and the effect was very beneficial. Soon the inflammation began to subside, and by keeping on the crushed beet, changing it for a fresh one as its virtue seemed to become impaired, a speedy cure was effected. Simple but effectual remedies like this should be known to every body.

GOING off fast, and for vale unsually low; by COLLINS & BREED. MARBLE! MARBLE!!

THE firm of Saul & Dean was dissolved on the 12th of October last. The undersigned still continues the Marble business at the old stand, formerly occupied by Reebee, two doors east of T. R. "Selmes' Buildings." He has on hand a good assortment of Italian and American marble, and hopes all those wishing to purchase will call and see for themselves. He will sell cheaper than has ever been sold in the West, and his work cannot help pleasing, for cheapness and style.

MARBLE! MARBLE!

Colding done so the ladies cannot easily be missaged in putting the work together, and warranted to fit if properly made.

His shop is on Main street, two doors north of Messars. Shoot & Davis' livery stable, and immediately opposite S. J. Lowe's store.
